

They must have lied about my age
when I was born.

They must have seen my crumpled face,
my crooked body
and have known
it would be too cruel –

to have lived so long
and not to tell.

They must have lied about my age
when I was born –
so I would not know

I was mute.